4) There is no definition of "public news" in the Regulations Act & it is difficult to say that the magazine deals with public news in the sense in which the expression is ordinarily understood. It seems to deal only with Educational topics and Cognate subjects such as athletics and the activities of College Unions etc.

The draft-magazine appears to be quite unobjectionable.

The significance of "public news" will be fairly clear if we place it in juxtaposition with "private news". Private news is information that is of interest solely to individuals ~~[illegible]~~ which is communicated in letters from one person to another. Public news, on the other hand, ~~[illegible]~~ information that is published and that is of interest either to the whole community or to a section or undefined portion of it, as distinguished from individuals. Views which, if ~~held~~ published would be treated as private, may become public when it is published. both the publication and the range of the circulation to be exerted are the criteria

However, all this is perhaps a bit too academic.

In the present instance, as the publication is a magazine, though an educational, may appeal to the public or at least a wider public than is comprised within the walls of the College, and as permission has already been given I would grant the permission.
